Class History

On that fateful day in September, 1947, sixteen mothers brought their sixteen wide-eyed bundles of curiosity to board the educational airplane, The Allison Airlines. The members of the crew were: Emily Allison, Jane Betsinger, Nancy Grimmis, Junior Heyenga, Kenneth Kampman, Paul Kirchdoerfer, Judith Kuehl, Sandra Leerhoff, Joyce Miller, Pamela Opperman, Brent Prange, James Shepard, William Shepard, Ronald Speedy, Carol Stirling, Judy Wilkinson. Our pilot was Mrs. Maxine Poppen.

Our first mission was successful except for Pamela Opperman and Judy Wilkinson. The pilot was changed to Miss Miehe and Dee Ann Courbat, Patricia Thompson, and Carolyn Wessels were added to our crew.

On our second flight, Miss Darby took over the controls. Marvin Cooper, Ellen Doeden, Marley Freesemann, Ardis Janssen, Harold Allan, Anna Mae Leerhoff and Joan Rewerts were added. Junior Heyenga and Carol Stirling waited for a later flight.

Mrs. Maxine Poppen guided the plane through the third mission with no change except for one addition, Keith Maier.

For our fourth mission, Mrs. Ranshaw piloted the plane. While waiting for our pre-flight instructions, Charles Allison came aboard. Keith Maier, Harold Allan, Patricia Thompson, and Nancy Grimmis decided to take a different plane.

For our fifth mission, Mrs. Harms piloted the plane. As the motors were warming up, Delores DeBower, Harley Henrichs, Roger Kussatz, Larry Oltmann came aboard. We lost none during this mission.

Mrs. Harms took over the controls for her final mission and guided the plane safely through the sixth mission without any additions or losses.

Our elementary plane was left on the runway while we boarded the new Allison Junior High Plane.

Mrs. Griffith handled the stick for our seventh mission. During the flight, we lost one and gained two. They were: Paul Kirchdoerfer, Dwaine Clemens and Eugene Hackbarth, respectively.

For his first and stormiest flight, Mr. Brown took over. While refueling, one new member was added to the crew, Sharon Krull. The excitement proved to be too much for Dwaine Clemens and Eugene Hackbarth, and they found it necessary to bail out. Although the motor sputtered several times, we struggled through this flight.

Again it was necessary to charter a new and larger plane, the Allison High Airlines. This occupied by the former crew and fifteen new members. The new members were: Jeanne Manifold, Richard Dralle, James DeBower, Myrna Wubbena, Judy Gilmore, Keith Oltmann, Jeanette Wearda, Karen Harms, Dick Mathison, Linda Frerichs, Roger Johnson, Judy Johnson, Pamela Opperman, Lois Harken, and Virgil Crawford.

Our tenth mission proved to be a disastrous one for we gained only two members, Barbara Kaighin and David Bailey, and lost six, Jeanne Manifold, Judy Gilmore, Anna Mae Leerhoff, Jeanette Wearda, Linda Frerichs, and Dick Mathison.

Our eleventh flight proved to be successful with no gains or losses.

We all started our twelfth and final mission except for Judy Johnson who missed the plane. The members of the crew are:
